PROGRAM INFORMATION

USPOULTRY's 2026 Live Production, Welfare and Biosecurity Seminar will address the critical issues shaping today's grow-out operations, with a focus on production efficiencies, biosecurity best practices, emergency preparedness, and animal welfare.

Industry experts, including production managers, veterinarians, and scientists, will provide practical insights to help you stay current on emerging challenges and effective management strategies. Attendees will gain a better understanding of the importance of strong biosecurity programs, preparedness and response during emergencies, and key welfare indicators that can help identify potential concerns and support better bird health and performance.

Don't miss this year's seminar! The knowledge and strategies you take away can make a lasting impact on your birds, your operation, and your company.
